Sun. It's critical that people use enough sunscreen and reapply after thirty minutes in the sun. —Dr. Klein

I would rather answer this question with a question. Cellular Cycle Ampoules For The Face by La Prairie sells for about $300 for seven ampoules. Alcohol is represented heavily in the ingredient list. Do you think it would be a wise choice for your daily skincare regimen? —Dr. Moëtloeken

A ROOM OF HIS OWN
Beleaguered beauties tired of tagging along with high-maintenance girlfriends have a new spate of grooming sanctuaries to call their own. Guys won't feel girly at The Barber Shop Club (4907 Melrose, 323.939.4359), which has the look of an old-fashioned men's club and offers up-to-date services including a $150 image consultant. Allan's Club in New York has been a big draw for dudes for 15 years. Now the upscale men's spa has a new product line, exclusively at Barney's New York in Beverly Hills and a club is set to open in L.A. later this year. DAMAGE CONTROL
In a momentary lapse of judgment you decide to snip your bangs. Short. Blunt. Sassy. It worked for Heidi Klum, right? Sad to say your forehead or your new fringe look much like Ms. Klum's and you dial tress doctor Jen MacDonald. Working out of a private suite above the Jonathan Salon, this pink-haired pixie combines an invisible extension technique with trimming and coloring to correct most disastrous mane mishaps. Hair too short? She'll give it length. Overzealous Supercuts shape? She'll snip it into shape. So forget shame while those bangs grow out. A few strands of virgin hair and you'll find your long-locked self in no time. at West Hollywood, 323.304.1815.
